THe Inhabitants of the Earthly Globe may this present year observe four Eclipses of the two greater Luminaries, two of the Sun, and as many of the Moon.

The first is a total and almost Central Eclipse of the Moon, which happens the 15 of March; the former part of which only will be visible to us, by reason that the Moon sets Eclips'd. Thus Calculated:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Eclipse begins | 4 h. 38 m. | |
| Total Darkness begins | 4 h. 46 m. | Morning. |
| Moon sets | 5 h. 50 m. | |
| Half total duration | 2 h. 4 m. | |
| Half total darkness | 00 h. 56 m. | |
| Digits Eclipsed | 19 dig. 48 m. | |

The second is a very small Solar Eclipse upon the 23 of August, which will be visible onely in the Northern parts of the Earth, within the Arctick Circle, &c.

The third is a very great Eclipse of the Moon upon the 8 day of September, and to be seen onely in the more Eastern parts of the Earth. It will be invisible to us, because the Sun doth not set, nor the Moon rise here, till the Eclipse be past.

The fourth and last is an Eclipse of the Sun upon the 18 of February, to be seen onely in the Southern parts of the Earth, by reason of the Moons Southern latitude and paralax.

Here follows a Tide-Table, which may indifferently serve for Boston and Charlstown: as also a Table to finde the Moons southing, and consequently the time of night, when she shines.

First for the Tides. Count how old the Moon is, or how many dayes are past since the Change, & that number find in the 2 outermost Columns, entitled the ☽ age, and in the common Angle in the 2d and 3d Col. is the time of full Sea in hours and minutes, for the aforesaid places.

For the Moons southing. Finde her age as before in the outermost Col. and in the common Angle in the 4th and 5th Col. is the time of her Southing in hours and minutes. With which repair to a Sun dyal (the Moon shining) and what hours and min. the shadow wants of the hour-line XII. substract; but what its past, adde to the ☽ southing, the remainder, or total gives the time of the night.

The Starry Monarch now in's full careere,
Comes marching up to our North Hemisphere;
And by his burning Beams, our Frigid Zone
Doth Metamorphize to a Temperate one;
Re-animating with Celestial Fire,
Those liveless Natures Hyem's caus'd t'expire:
And causing Tellus t'doff her Winter Vest,
For joy of th'Spring, her new-come, welcome guest.

Now Ceres Offspring's numerous every where,
And mighty Armies of Tall Blades appear
In many Fields, all Rank'd and Fil'd they ſtand
Ready for Battel: With whom hand to hand
Fierce Husbandmen with crooked Cutlaſh meet,
And as Victors lay them at their feet.
This Office; together th'Blades are bound,
Tranſported home, and ſoundly threſh'd on th'ground.

Of golden-colour'd Ears, seem to implore
By humble bowing of their lofty Head,
From this their load to be delivered.

With pleasing Beauty, Lovers do invite
In multitudes: it's well if they escape
From each of these, without a cruel Rape.

They'll King it over all, and rule the Rost.
Which to effect, it is Agreed by all,
That blustring Boreas shall be Generall
Of their great Forces; and then to't they go,
And Tellus Kingdome first they'll overthrow.

Where thundring Boreas, with his Troops, doth shake
The trembling Woods, and makes the Trees to quake:
The Leaves for very fear the Trees have left,
Which of their July garb, now're quite bereft:
The Fruits, those pleasant Fruits, the painted Flowers,
The Flow'ry Meads, gay Fields, and shady Bowers,
Are now destroy'd; and th'Earths depriv'd of all
by this Wasting FALL.

Exit Autumnus : Winter now draws neare,
Armed with Frost i'th'Van, with Snow i'th' Rere;
Whose freezing Forces cause men to retire,
For help to th'Fortress of a well-made Fire.
Phœbus himself, as if with pannick feare
Hereat affrighted, now in's full Careere
Doth poste away, and speeds him from our sight
In greatest hast, bidding the World good-night.

The Northern Captains Siege still fiercely lasts,
And still the Roaring Canons of his Blasts
Are fired off; which brings both Land and Sea
His Chained Captives quickly for to be:
And lest they should rebell, if load they lack,
Mountains of Snow are heap'd on Tellus back;
The lofty swelling Waves, from Neptune's pride
Are made a packhorse on which men may ride.
